

JOHN BARROW KNOWS: Conservation and Recreation Go Hand in Hand in Georgia

John Barrow's family has been fishing the tidal marshes, rivers and coastal waters of Georgia for over 200 years. He knows anglers and hunters are the first line of defense in protecting our environment and that conservation and recreation go hand in hand.

John Barrow has committed to protecting Georgia's barrier islands and our fragile salt marshes that serve as fish nurseries and protect us from hurricanes. John Barrow has also pledged to lead efforts to ensure future Georgia generations enjoy clean waters, wild places and healthy fisheries.
